Specific Absorption Rate Information

International standards

THIS TABLET MEETS THE INTERNATIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EXPOSURE TO RADIO WAVES

Your tablet is a radio transmitter and receiver. It is designed and manufactured not to exceed the limits for exposure to radio frequency (RF) energy defined by the international standards. These recommendations have been established by the International Commission on Non-Ionizing Radiation Protection (ICNIRP) and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) that for cast a substantial safety margin for assuring the protection of all persons, regardless of age and health. SAR.

The exposure recommendations for tablet use a matter known as the Specific Absorption Rate (SAR). The SAR limit recommended by the ICNIRP for the tablet used by the general public is 2.0W/kg averaged over ten grams of tissue and, is 1.6W/kg averaged over one gram of tissue by IEEE Std 1528 for the head.

Tests for SAR have been conducted using recommended operating positions with the tablet transmitting at its highest certified power level in all tested frequency bands. Although the SAR is determined at the highest certified power level, the actual SAR levels of the tablet while operating are generally below the maximum SAR value. This is because the tablet is designed to operate at multiple power levels so as to use only the power required to reach the network. In general, the closer you are to a base station antenna, the lower the power output. While there may be differences between the SAR levels of various tablet and at various positions, they all meet the international protection standards for exposure to radio waves.

The highest SAR value for this Philips TLE722G model tablet when tested at the ear is X.XXX W/kg , and when properly worn on the body is X.XXX W/kg, for ICNIRP recommendation.

SAR is measured against head and with the device at a separation of 15mm to the body, while transmitting at the highest certified output power level in all frequency bands of the mobile device.

For limiting the radio waves exposure, it is recommended to reduce the tablet phone call duration or to use a headset. The purpose of those precautions is to take the tablet away from the head and the body.
